1,737 Summer Session Enrollment Is 8% Increase Over Last Year

11 Visitors On Summer Faculty

Eleven educators from all over the United States are 1959 summer school visiting faculty members at Bowling Green State University.

The visitors supplement the nearly 75 members of the regular faculty who are teaching in the summer sessions here.

The visiting summer school educators are: Miss Amy Allen, supervisor of special education for the Ohio State Department of Health, Columbus; Dr. William H. Bristow, director of the bureau of curriculum research for the New York, N.Y., Board of Education; Dr. Theodore L. Carlson, professor of economics at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Dr. Katie Lou Hanson, professor of education at Ohio Northern University, Ada; Dr. William Harrington, director of student teaching at Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea.

Dr. Ray C. Maul, assistant director of the research division for the National Education Association, Washington, D.C.; Miss Mary Alice O'Brien, teacher of slow learning children for Marion City Schools; Fred Thayer, instructor in speech at the University of Toledo; Dr. Herbert Weisinger, professor of English at Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich.; Mrs. Florence H. Wenger, kindergarten supervisor at Kent State University, Kent; and Mrs. Margaret S. Woods, lecturer in creative dramatics at Seattle Pacific College.

Bowling Green State University has the largest summer session enrollment in its history, President Ralph W. McDonald said today.

The first session, which opened on June 15, has an enrollment of 1,737, not including students attending workshops being operated by the University this summer.

Cooperation Asked On Summer Parking

"With numerous conventions on the campus during the summer and usual summer school activity, we are asking the cooperation of all persons driving to the campus," said Ray Whittaker, assistant dean of students.

"In order to provide adequate parking space and to maintain traffic control for maximum safety and convenience of all, it is necessary to assign all vehicles to designated parking areas," he added.

Students are asked to park in one of four areas—1, 2, 15, and 16. Area 1 is the paved lot east of the football stadium. Area 2 is located north of Overman Hall. Area 15 is north of Gate Theatre and east of the Power Plant. Area 16 is the Sorority Row lot north of the University Health Service.

Faculty members, administrative officers, and other University employees should park in the same areas to which they have been assigned during the past academic year, unless they have been informed otherwise by traffic officials.

Area 18, situated west of Ridge Cottage, is set aside for those assigned to the area, as well as for convention guests and for parents and students coming here for fall registration.

This is an increase of 8% over the enrollment of the first summer session last year and is more than double the enrollment of five summers ago.

The increase this summer is relatively uniform at all levels and in all colleges, Dr. McDonald said.

In addition to the increased enrollment in the regular courses, a record enrollment is expected in summer workshops and special courses. Nine workshops and special courses are now underway; 12 more are scheduled.

The present summer session will end on July 17. The registration period for the second session is from July 13 to 18, with classwork beginning on July 20.

Health Service Lists Summer School Hours

Summer hours at the University Health Service have been announced by Dr. John Marsh, Health Service director.

During the week, the student medical center is open from 9 a.m. till noon and from 1-4 p.m. On Saturdays, hours are from 9 a.m. till noon.

No infirmity bed care will be given during the two summer sessions, Dr. Marsh said. Students who need bed care will be sent either to Wood County Hospital or to their homes.

MELON CUTTING JULY 7

All summer school students and faculty members are invited to the first watermelon cutting of the summer sessions Tuesday afternoon, July 7, at Urschel Pond.

Nine Workshops Now Underway

Of the 21 workshops and special courses scheduled for this summer, nine are now in session. During the next two weeks, five of the nine will be completed, and five others will open.

"Community Resources (in Sandusky)," "Education of Slow Learners," "The Social Studies," "Disorders of Speech, Hearing, and Vision," and "Physical Education and Athletics" are the five that will end during the next two weeks.

Others currently in session are "Special Problems and Laboratory Work in the Teaching of Reading," "Conservation Education," "Reading Center," and "Summer Theatre at Huron."

Workshops in "Reading and the Language Arts," "Community Resources (in Lima)," "Creative Dramatics (in Sandusky)," and "Teaching the Gifted Child" will begin Monday. A week from Monday, the workshop in "Mental Health and Hygiene" will open.

MISS TRUDIE BERNSTEIN (right), Bowling Green, points out parts of the upper respiratory system important in rehabilitation of persons with certain speech disorders, as two members of the current summer workshop on "Disorders of Speech, Hearing, and Vision in Children" get a close-up view. The student onlookers are Gary Bandleau (left), Port Clinton, and Alberta Barr, Ottawa. Miss Bernstein, a representative of the Northwest District Office of the Ohio Department of Health, is assisting Dr. George Herman, BGSU assistant professor of speech, in teaching the two-week workshop.

BG Study-Tour Group Sails For Continent

The Summer BG News Office has received two letters from the BGSU "Summer Study Abroad" tour group which set sail from Montreal June 9 for ten weeks of travel and study in Europe.

Dr. Howard Brogan, chairman of the English department and tour director, writes that the tour group includes four teachers from northwest Ohio—Mrs. Hazel Johnson, Delta; Mrs. Evelyn Reiser, St. Marys; Carl G. Smith, Oak Harbor, and Miss Ruth Wyse, Pettisville. BGSU seniors John Voorhees and Miss Kathryn Ruda, and a BGSU alumna of this year, Miss Donna Lou Stratton, are also among the travellers. Mrs. Brogan, who teaches in Gibsonburg, and the Brogans' three youngsters—Patrick, 16; Jesse, 14; and Pam, 11—are travelling with the group.

The tour director said that members of his party arrived in Montreal in a number of ways—by auto, train, and plane. Some who drove found that it was possible to leave their autos in dead storage over the summer in Montreal.

Aboard the new Canadian Pacific luxury liner, the Empress of England, Dr. Brogan wrote on behalf of the group shortly after embarkation from Montreal: "This ship seems admirably appointed and very comfortable. We left Montreal at noon today (June 9), and just steamed past Quebec, glittering in the dusk on its high bluffs. This letter will go off at Father Point, way up toward the river mouth where we drop our pilot. Hot in Montreal; nice and cool up here."

In the second letter, written aboard the Empress June 15, Dr. Brogan said: "The BGSU Summer Study tour has had a rough North Atlantic crossing. We were held up three hours standing by the Canadian coast while sailors were taken off a foundering craft there. The same storm tossed our ship about a good deal, and we were also delayed by foggy weather in an area sprinkled with icebergs. Consequently, we are going directly to Liverpool without making the scheduled first stop in Scotland.

"The latter part of the voyage has been over very quiet seas, part of the time in sunlight, and everybody has been in good spirits. At the present moment, we are passing along the northeast tip of Ireland, with the Grant's Causeway on our right and a nearby Scottish island on our left. We now cross the Irish Sea, past the ancient Isle of Man, to the Mersey River and the docks of Liverpool.

"At Liverpool, our party begins a long tour—five days in western England, Wales, and southern England, 15 days in Belgium West Germany, Switzerland, and France, six more in England—all in the London area, including Oxford and Cambridge—and then up to the Lumley Castle, Chester-le-Street, (Continued on page 4)

New Audio-Visual Aids Center To Be Established This Fall

A new intra-campus service area will be set up this fall at Bowling Green State University when Dr. Fred E. Williams joins the faculty to take charge of audio-visual aids.

DR. WILLIAMS

One of Dr. Williams' first responsibilities will be the establishment of an audio-visual aid center here, according to Dr. John Gee, dean of the College of Education. After surveying projectors, tape recorders, and other equipment within the various departments on campus, Dr. Williams' office will serve the departments and faculty members by assisting them in selection of audio-visual materials for their classes and arranging for equipment to be available to them in the classroom when they need it.

The new instructor in education also hopes to set up an in-service training program on audio-visual aids for BGSU faculty members. Through such a program, interested instructors will have the chance to learn how to use varied audio-visual techniques effectively in their classrooms.

Plans for the audio-visual aids center include eventual establishment of a film library, but that will come after the center has been set up and all equipment and other facets of its operation are in order.

In addition to spending half his time coordinating audio-visual aids, Dr. Williams will spend half his time teaching. At present, one course on audio-visual aids to instruction is offered in the College of Education. Dr. Williams will be teaching that, as well as cognate courses in the branches during his first year here. Future prospects are favorable for expansion in the area of audio-visual education, Dr. Gee said.

Dr. Williams has the B.S. and M.A. degrees from Florida State University, and received the Ed.D. degree from Indiana University this month. He has been a lecturer in audio-visual education at Indiana the past two years, and prior to that, served as a graduate assistant in the audio-visual center there for a year. His experience also includes two years as a high school teacher in Crawfordsville, Fla., two years as a graduate assistant in library school at Florida State University, and two years as film librarian and instructor in library science at Ball State Teachers College.

Included on one of the stiffest basketball schedules in Bowling Green State University history in the coming season will be defending Big Ten champion, Michigan State, and the National Invitational tournament runner-up, Bradley, athletic director Harold Anderson disclosed in announcing the 1959-60 slate.

Michigan State is the first Western Conference team to appear on a Bowling Green court schedule while Bradley and Bowling Green met in the 1949 NIT and played at Peoria during the 1952-53 season.

Other members of the 24th annual all-college tourney field includes defending champion Oklahoma City, Cornell, Clemson, Utah State, Niagara, Tulsa and Wichita. The Falcons finished third in last year's tourney, defeating Wichita and seeded Xavier while losing to Duquesne in the semifinals.

As defending co-champions of the Mid-American Conference and the NCAA tourney representative, the Falcons will have 11 road games along with the all-college affair. The 10-game home season will open with Hillsdale on Dec. 1. The rugged 12-game MAC round-robin will commence Jan. 6 at Western Michigan and close Feb. 27 at home with Marshall.

Scores of the campus winners were sent to national tournament headquarters where figures were compared with scores sent from other competing colleges and universities across the country, and winners were chosen by regions. BGSU is in region five which includes the states of Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana. O'Leary said.

One-Day Fire Fighting School To Be Held On Sterling Farm

A one-day fire fighting school to which the 28 fire companies in Wood County are being invited has been scheduled here for July 12, to be directed by Louis A. Helmke, fire prevention specialist in the office of the State Fire Marshal.

The school will include a series of demonstrations of the latest and most effective methods of fighting fire in residences and small buildings.

The idea for the school grew out of a problem which faced Bowling Green State University following acquisition of the Sterling farm last month. Located on the farm, on the north side of Ridge Street and east of Oak Grove Cemetery, are a number of old buildings which are of no use to the University.

Among these buildings are an old stucco house that has not been used for several years and a small frame residence, neither of which is deemed habitable, plus an old barn, garage, chicken house, and two other small structures.

Following the purchase of the farm by the University, the buildings with one exception were surveyed by the Director of Public Works and then advertised for sale. The one exception was the house of Mrs. Delia Sterling, which was not included in the sale of the farm and was moved to another location on June 10.

Only one bid was received and that was on the barn, which was accordingly sold to the bidder and is now being torn down and moved away. The other six, useless and without salvage value, remained to pose a disposal problem.

The Director of Public Works then suggested that these buildings would be excellent for fire fighting demonstrations and recommended that the University turn them over to the Wood County Firemen's Association for controlled burning as an educational project. This has been done and preparations are now under way for the one-day fire fighting school.

The fire fighting school has been set for a Sunday, so that volunteer firemen can attend. Thermocouples will be placed throughout the buildings in the demonstrations to measure temperatures and the effectiveness of various techniques of fire fighting.

Two Faculty Members Receive Doctorates

Two faculty members at Bowling Green State University received the Ph.D. degree at university commencements this month. They are Charles E. Helppie, lecturer in business administration, and Miss Dorothy Moulton, assistant professor of English.

They will direct plays, as will Dr. Stanley Kahan, another representative of the Bowling Green speech department. Fred Thayer of the University of Toledo is technical director for all productions, and he will be assisted by Jerry Banninga of BGSU and Frank Glann, Maumee.

In addition to "The Happiest Millionaire" and the unforgettable play, "The Diary of Anne Frank," this year's Huron performance schedule includes a musical, three classic comedies, and a children's play during the eight-week season from June 21 to August 15.

Each of the major productions will run five nights, opening on Tuesday and closing on Saturday, with curtain-time at 8 p.m. Two of the major productions, "The Diary of Anne Frank," and "Peg O' My Heart," will be brought to campus for morning matinees during the summer sessions. The children's play will be given two afternoons at the end of the season.

All seats at the Playhouse are reserved. Single tickets are available, as are special bargain books which include six admissions good for any of the performances. Advance reservations may be made by writing Huron Playhouse, Huron, O., or by telephoning Huron 72291.

Now in its 11th consecutive season as a non-profit educational summer theatre operated by the Bowling Green State University speech department, the Playhouse offers students, in addition to production experience, classwork in dramatics on both the graduate and undergraduate levels. The Huron Board of Education provides the auditorium, classrooms, industrial arts shop, and cafeteria for use by the summer theatre company.

CREDIT UNION MOVES

Summer headquarters for the Bowling Green State University Credit Union are in the office of Cordie Ridgeway, assistant in residential and plant operations. His office is located on the second floor of the Maintenance Building. Mr. Ridgeway and Dr. Galen Stutsman, associate professor of business education, are sharing the work of the Credit Union treasurer during the summer while the regular treasurer, Charles B. Smith, instructor in business education, is away.

THREE MEMBERS of the Huron Playhouse company point the way to the summer theatre on the shore of Lake Erie. They are (left to right) Julie Lane from BGSU, Jan Borgia from the College of Wooster, and Bruce Wagner from BGSU. The students arrived at Huron during the past weekend to begin classes and stagework. Several of the plays have already been cast and rehearsals are underway.

Summer Abroad

County Durham, in north England. There we will settle down for a month of study, with week-end tours to Scotland (the Burns country, the Trossachs, and the Scotch border area), to the English Lakes, and to Nottingham, Lincoln, and York.

Dr. Brogan got the idea for the tour while travelling on the Continent and in the British Isles last summer. After studying in England in the summer of 1958, he travelled the route to be included in this year's program, and investigated tour arrangements with travel agencies in London and in this country. Arrangements were completed for the study-tour during this past school year.

This is the first summer such a program has been offered by the University. The program, planned primarily for persons interested in English literature, will make it possible for four members to earn three to six semester hours of either undergraduate or graduate credit by combining class work with travel and experience related to the course. The works of the British Romantic authors and the locales in which they worked and lived are focal points of the study-tour.

BGSU Science Departments Benefit From AEC, NSF Grants

Science students at Bowling Green State University are benefitting from half a dozen grants received by University science departments this spring.

A study of microscopic plant life in western Lake Erie, supported by a National Science Foundation grant through the Natural Resources Institute at Ohio State University, is being conducted at Put-in-Bay this summer, with Miss Eloise Whitwer, BGSU associate professor of biology, and two Bowling Green students—graduate Bruce Cowell and underclassman Gordon Forster—among the investigators.

A third-year renewal of an Atomic Energy Commission grant gives biology students at Bowling Green a chance to continue work on a research project dealing with productivity in aquatic environments. The students—upperclassmen Alyce Hance, Terry Hufford, and Robert Hill—will be working on the project under the supervision of four BGSU faculty members—Dr. Jacob Verduin, chairman of the biology department, and Dr. Ernest Hamilton, Dr. Edward Karlin, and Miss Whitwer.

Another Atomic Energy Commission grant is providing for the establishment this summer of a radiobiology laboratory here. This will give students added opportunities to learn the use of such equipment as Geiger counters, basic scalars with gas flow counter and amplifier attachments, and survey meters. In addition to the young researchers using the equipment, students enrolled in general physiology, bacteriology, ecology, and general biology classes will have exercises in radiobiology as part of their coursework this year.

Under a National Science Foundation grant to support scientific research by college undergraduates, a select group of outstanding students are working in the BGSU chemistry laboratories on basic research problems of varied types this summer and throughout the year. The students are conducting their investigations under the supervision of BGSU chemistry faculty members, including Dr. W. H. Hall, chairman of the department, along with Dr. Hanns Anders, Dr. Arlo Boggs, Dr. Averill Hammer, Dr. Peggy Hurst, and Dr. Joseph Weber. The projects are in the areas of electro-organic, physical, and analytical chemistry.

In Service Institute

Again during the coming year, the National Science Foundation will sponsor an In-Service Institute at BGSU, making it possible for high school physics, mathematics, and chemistry teachers to return to student status two or three hours each week for classwork in modern physics, physical chemistry, and fundamental concepts of mathematics. Dr. W. H. Hall is director of the NSF Institute.

Registration, incidental fees, and transportation for the Institute participants are paid for by the National Science Foundation, while the students purchase their own textbooks and classroom supplies, Dr. Hall explained. Applications for admission to Institute classes should be filed by August 1, and the classes will begin September 21.
